Request for Minor Amendment to the Special Use Permit

Applicant:	Shea Homes
Representative:	Rose Law Group
Submitted:	January 19, 2018

Azure, a Shea Signature Community, features 66 homes located within “Parcel B” of the 105-acre master-planned community known as The Ritz-Carlton, Paradise Valley that is currently under development. Priced from $2 million and up, Azure offers homes ranging from approximately 3,800 square feet to 6,700 square feet using transformative architecture and traditional form in a contemporary way. Diverse exterior materials from wood and stone to metal and stucco create a unique exterior aesthetic, while each floorplan includes nods to elements of traditional Paradise Valley homes including ranch-style layouts and large entryways. Blurring the lines of indoor/outdoor living, each home will feature a Great Room with expansive outdoor living space.

On April 6, 2017, the Town of Paradise Valley approved the Parcel B Grading and Drainage plans prepared by CVL which allow for 3 foot retaining walls/structures in the backyards of 14 homes. On October 30, 2017 and November 17, 2017, the Town of Paradise Valley approved residential wall-Fence permits for lots 6 and 61, respectively, allowing for the 6-foot backyard privacy walls to be constructed atop the 3 foot retaining walls/structures. After building permits were issued a question about the total height of the walls was raised by the Town, and it was decided that rather than building the permitted walls/structures, Shea would ask for Planning Commission review as a Minor Amendment to the existing Special Use Permit.

As permitted, and per the approved Parcel B Grading & Drainage Plans, the resident on the “high side” of the wall will see only a 6-foot backyard privacy wall. The “low side” resident will see a 3-foot retaining wall/structure topped by a 6 foot backyard privacy wall. Retaining walls/structures, used in combination with backyard privacy walls are very common in master planned communities and small subdivision, often becoming necessary to address existing site topography and drainage conditions. Typically, the total height of such walls is measured from the “high side” of the wall. It is also a situation where only the adjacent homeowner on the “low side” of the wall will see the retaining wall/structure and will be aware of the wall height prior to any purchase.

Some pertinent information below:

- The Town reviewed and issued building permits for the construction of the retaining walls/structures (see attached Exhibit A);
- The Town reviewed and issued building permits for the construction of the backyard privacy walls that separate the interior lots (see attached Exhibit B);
- The Town and Shea agree that there are no structural or safety concerns with a 6-foot privacy wall built on top of a 3 foot retaining wall/structure;
- The retaining walls/structures cannot be seen from the street and will only be seen from the backyards of those homes located adjacent and on the “low side” of the wall (see attached Exhibit C);

- The criteria necessary to issue a Managerial Amendment are all satisfied, but Stipulation 43(b) which reads, “Additional walls not shown on the Approved Plans may be constructed on the lot within enclosed private yards, provided they do not exceed six (6) feet in height” causes the Town to request that Shea submit to Planning Commission review;
- It was surprising to Shea to find that the Town might read Stipulation 43(b) to apply to this situation, specifically to retaining walls/structures. There do not appear to be any Municipalities in the Phoenix metro area or Pinal County submarket that include a retaining wall/structure in the total wall height calculation;
- The only “additional walls” are the 6-foot backyard privacy walls. The 3 foot retaining walls/structures are just that, walls/structures that help account for the site topography and allow for proper drainage. Most Municipalities (like PV), limit the wall height of a backyard wall to 6 feet. This is typically measured from grade on the high side of the wall. Once a developer achieves their zoning, they start the final design process and that is when their engineer determines where retaining walls/structures are needed. Municipalities anticipate that development will need some retaining walls/structures at lot lines and so they continue to measure wall height from grade on the high side lot. If, on the other hand, they added the retaining wall/structure height to the backyard privacy wall height, a developer would need to amend their zoning or get a Variance on nearly every case.

In order to avoid these scenarios, most municipalities do not include retaining walls/structures in the total wall height calculations. The only regulation we could find relating to wall height and retaining walls/structures in other Valley Cities is where a City limits the retaining wall/structure itself to no more than 3 feet. We are not in any way comparing the Town to other Municipalities but wanted to make sure to note that it appears that this is close to 100% practice in other places around the Phoenix Metro area. While we were not involved in the original SUP, we believe that because there do not appear to be any Municipalities in Arizona that count retaining walls/structures as a part of the total wall height, that Stipulation 43(b) did not mean 6 feet as measured from the low side lot or low side of the wall. If Stipulation 43(b) would have meant “add retaining walls/structures to backyard wall height and don’t exceed 6 feet” that would have been completely atypical and setting the Town/Developer up for continual SUP minor amendments on something that is not worthy of Staff resources as there is no safety or view concern.

- Prior to the sale of any homesite, Shea will have the buyer sign an individual plot plan showing the retaining structure on the lot. Further, construction would be completed on the retaining structure by April 2018 so the buyer could physically see it. In other words, the existence of this retaining wall/structure will not be a surprise to the only people who can even see the wall.

- Please see Exhibit D showing other examples of retaining walls/structures with 6 foot privacy walls as to demonstrate it is in no way an obtrusive situation.

Finally, because of site topography, if Shea were required to separate the retaining wall/structure from the backyard privacy wall this would not serve any safety or aesthetic purpose. The only result of that sort of requirement will be that the homeowner will lose two or three usable feet of their backyard.

As this request is entirely in keeping with the SUP and overall character of the development, and simply allows for a typical grading and drainage solution to be implemented without any concern for outside visual impact or safety, we hope you will be supportive of this request. We look forward to your further input during this Minor SUP Amendment process.
